ESPN Puts D.C. on the Map

WASHINGTON | It's still not a state, but at least D.C. is now the final stop on ESPN's "50 States, 50 Days" tour.

The all-sports network confirmed Tuesday that "SportsCenter" anchor Linda Cohn will broadcast from the west side of the Capitol's reflecting pool on Labor Day, ending a month of bickering between the District and ESPN.

ESPN originally said it left the nation's capital off its nationwide tour because it's not a state. That drew criticism from, among others, Mayor Anthony Williams, who said in a July 19 release that he'd "be glad to show Chris Berman why D.C. is a special sporting town," referring to the famed sports anchor.

In confirming ESPN's change of heart, Senior Vice President Norby Williamson said, "We're glad to accept the mayor's invitation and look forward to capping off SportsCenter's nationwide journey in our nation's capital."

But political commentator Mark Plotkin, who criticized ESPN for the snub, still isn't satisfied. The broadcast site, he said, represents only the federal part of the District and not the parts of the city where residents actually live. MATT SWENSON (EXPRESS)

Hunt on For Tenn. Fugitives

Inmate, wife elude pursuit after courthouse shootout

KINGSTON, TENN. | Prison nurse Jennifer Forsyth got fired last year for sneaking food to an inmate. A few months later, she got permission from the warden to marry that inmate, George Hyatte, a man with a long and violent criminal record.

Now the 31-year-old woman from Utah who had never been in trouble with the law is charged with gunning down a correctional officer Tuesday in a brazen attempt to help her new husband escape.

Hyatte

Both are now being sought in a nationwide manhunt for their role in what one law enforcement official called a "Bonnie and Clyde-style shootout."

Federal authorities on Wednesday found a van the couple used to escape parked outside an Econo Lodge motel in Erlanger, Ky., about 200 miles north of the Tennessee courthouse where the inmate escaped.

The couple had been in the motel, but were gone when a SWAT team arrived, said Rich Knighten, spokesman for the U.S. Marshal for the Western District of Kentucky.

Jennifer Forsyth Hyatte is believed to have ambushed two guards as they were leading George Hyatte from a courthouse hearing, fatally shooting one of them and then speeding away with her husband. Authorities found large amounts of blood in the abandoned vehicle and believe she was wounded. DUNCAN MANSFIELD (AP)

TURF | Cutting the Grass Pulling up grass in Flagstaff, Ariz., could earn homeowners some extra greenbacks. The city is offering a one-time $500 rebate to households that remove at least 1,500 square feet of grass and replace it with rocks or hardy plants that don't require much water. The average homeowner uses about 72 gallons of water every year to maintain each square foot of grass, according to the Bureau of Reclamation. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

CONCERNED CRIMINALS

You Almost Hit My Stolen Truck

Police say a Des Moines, Iowa, man who stopped another driver Sunday to warn him about his careless driving was arrested for impersonating a police officer and driving a stolen pickup truck. Jessie Joe Hill was driving the pickup when he turned on a flashing light and pulled another driver over after the driver ran a stop sign, police said. "He said 'Can you slow down?' I said, 'Sure, no problem,'" said Erin Beganovic, the man Hill pulled over.

Then a real officer pulled up behind Hill and asked him what he was doing. Hill was also driving with a suspended license. (AP)

Please Take This Old Man Off Our Hands

Radomir Rakovic of Zrenjanin, Serbia, came home one recent night to find a stranger in his bed — thanks to confused medics. Rakovic tried to get Stojadin Andjelkovic, 77, to leave, but the man was sick and wouldn't move, Serbian media reported. Police came and determined medics took Andjelkovic from a hospital to the wrong house — using a key under the mat to unlock the door and put him to bed. (EXPRESS)

Bush Signs Highway Bill

$286.4 billion measure to fund thousands of legislators' pet projects

MONTGOMERY, ILL. | President Bush opened the gates Wednesday for spending a whopping $286.4 billion on roads and bridges, rail and bus facilities, bike paths and recreational trails, saying the projects from coast to coast would spur the economy and save lives.

Critics said the 1,000-page transportation bill was weighed down with pet projects to benefit nearly every member of Congress. The bill's price tag over six years was $30 billion more than Bush had recommended, but he said he was proud to sign it.

"Highways just don't happen," Bush said. "People have got to show up and do the work to refit a highway or build a bridge, and they need new equipment to do so. So the bill I'm signing is going to help give hundreds of thousands of Americans good-paying jobs."

Two years in the making, the highway bill contains more than 6,371 special projects valued at more than $24 billion, according to Taxpayers for Common Sense.

The distribution of the money for these projects "is based far more on political clout than on transportation need," said Keith Ashdown, vice president of policy for the group.

Alaska, the third-least populated state, for instance, got the fourth most money for special projects — $941 million — thanks largely to the work of its lone rep-

'Peace Mom' Protest Gains Support

Mother of fallen U.S. soldier keeps vigil at Bush's Texas ranch

CRAWFORD, TEXAS | The mother of a fallen U.S. soldier who started a quiet roadside peace vigil near President Bush's ranch last weekend is drawing supporters from across the nation.

Dozens of people have joined Cindy Sheehan, 48, of Vacaville, Calif. — and others have sent flowers and food.

Her 24-year-old son, Casey, was killed in Sadr City, Iraq, in April 2004, just five days after he arrived.

On Saturday, two high-level Bush administration officials, the national security adviser and deputy White House chief of staff, talked to Sheehan for about 20 minutes.

Sheehan

Sheehan called the brief meeting "pointless" and still wants to talk to the president.

"I want him to quit using my son's death to justify more killing," she said. "The only way he can honor my son's death is to bring the troops home." ANGELA K. BROWN (AP)

NEW YORK | The company that pioneered commercial space travel by sending "tourists" up to the International Space Station is planning a new mission: rocketing people around the far side of the moon. The price of a round-trip ticket: $100 million.

The first mission by Space Adventures aboard a modified Russian spacecraft could happen in 2008 or 2009 and is planned as a stepping stone to an eventual lunar landing by private citizens. (AP)

Curtain Call for Discovery's Crew

Astronauts lauded as officials cast critical eye on shuttle program

HOUSTON | Discovery's astronauts arrived to a rousing celebration Wednesday as nearly 700 people crowded an airplane hangar, waving flags and holding signs that read: "Welcome Home, Astronauts!"

The seven-person crew returned to Earth on Tuesday after being the first to take a space shuttle into orbit since the Columbia disaster of 2003.

"In the last two and a half years, we have been through the very worst that manned space flight can bring us, and over the past two weeks we have seen the very best," NASA Administrator Michael Griffin told the astronauts and their families, colleagues and fans Wednesday.

The crowd waved American flags for the U.S. astronauts and Japanese flags for crew member Soichi Noguchi, one of the spacewalkers.

While the homecoming has been filled with excitement for what mission controllers declared a "truly spectacular test flight," uncertainty remains for the future of the shuttle program.

Shortly after Discovery blasted off July 26, a nearly 1-pound chunk of foam insulation fell from the fuel tank — the very thing that was supposed to have been fixed after dooming Columbia. The foam missed Discovery, but NASA grounded all shuttle flights until engineers fix the problem.

NASA ground crews inspected Discovery after its return from orbit and found it in good condition, an official said Wednesday at NASA's Dryden Flight Research Center at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

"It's as clean a vehicle as I've seen after landing," said Dean Schaaf, landing support convoy commander.

Technicians counted 101 dings and divots, including 20 that were larger than one inch. Schaaf said that was similar to the results of other post-landing inspections. PAM EASTON (AP)

Yankee Fan Charged in Stadium Jump

NEW YORK | A fan who plunged from the upper deck at Yankee Stadium onto the screen behind home plate during Tuesday night's game between New York and the Chicago White Sox was released from the hospital into police custody Wednesday.

The game was delayed for four minutes in the eighth inning after 18-year-old Scott Harper of Armonk, N.Y., plummeted about 40 feet onto the large net.

After the final out, he was carried from the ballpark on a stretcher, his head immobilized in a neck brace, and taken to Lincoln Medical Center, where he was treated and released Wednesday.

He was immediately placed in police custody and taken to the 44th precinct in the Bronx where he was booked on charges of reckless endangerment and disorderly conduct, a New York police spokesman said.

Harper told three friends he was sitting with that he was going to test whether the net would hold his weight — and then he jumped, police said. The Yankees lost the game, 2-1. MIKE FITZPATRICK (AP)

Kidnapping comes as U.S. military reports 5 more G.I.s killed

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Gunmen kidnapped a senior Interior Ministry official in the heart of the Iraqi capital Wednesday, and the U.S. military reported that five more American soldiers had been killed.

The latest violence came as Iraqi politicians intensified talks to try to meet a Monday deadline for finalizing a constitution.

Brig. Gen. Khudayer Abbas, chief of the administrative affairs office in the Interior Ministry, was dragged from his car on Andalus Square and spirited away in another vehicle, according to police Maj. Abbas Mohammed Salman.

No group claimed responsibility.

Four U.S. soldiers were killed shortly before midnight Tuesday when insurgents attacked their 10-member patrol as it investigated explosions near Beiji, 155 miles north of Baghdad.

A fifth American soldier assigned to the 2nd Marine Division was killed Tuesday by small arms fire near Habaniyah, 50 miles west of Baghdad.

The Beiji attack was launched when insurgents detonated a roadside bomb, then poured rocket-propelled grenades and small arms fire on the American unit, the U.S. command said. Five soldiers and a U.S. civilian contractor were wounded.

The deaths brought the number of American troops killed this month in Iraq to 37.

Iran Breaks U.N. Seals to Resume Nuclear Program

ISFAHAN, IRAN | A defiant Iran resumed full operations at its uranium conversion plant Wednesday, as Europe and the United States struggled to find a way to stop the Islamic republic from pushing ahead with a nuclear program they fear will lead to weapons of mass destruction.

With United Nations inspectors watching, Iranian officials removed U.N. seals that had been placed voluntarily on equipment at the facility eight months ago when Tehran agreed to freeze most of its nuclear program.

The breaking of the seals at the facility in the mountains outside the southern city of Isfahan was the latest move of Iranian brinkmanship over its nuclear ambitions. (AP)

Final Prep for Gaza Pullout

Israeli troops drill for worst case scenarios as withdrawal nears

KEREM SHALOM, ISRAEL | In a final drill, thousands of Israeli troops prepared Wednesday for some of the worst scenarios in next week's Gaza pullout, from Palestinian mortar fire to settler violence and equipment failure.

Beginning Aug. 17, some 55,000 soldiers and police will remove some 9,000 Jewish settlers in 21 settlements in the Gaza Strip and four in the West Bank. While officials expect most settlers will leave voluntarily, they are bracing for passive resistance and attacks by Jewish extremists or Palestinian militants.

On Wednesday evening, Israeli President Moshe Katsav made a rare televised address to the nation, appealing to the settlers to leave peacefully. "The time has come,"

he said. "You must respect the decisions of the Cabinet and the parliament."

More than 100,000 opponents of the pullout gathered Wednesday at sundown for a prayer service at the Western Wall in the Old City of Jerusalem.

The protesters, including ultra-Orthodox Jews who up to now have stayed above the fray, filled the plaza in front of the holy site and spilled into the alleyways of the Jewish Quarter. ODED RAZ (AP)

Labor Woes Simmer in South Africa

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA | The worst strike in 18 years to hit South Africa's key gold industry is part of a wave of industrial unrest involving airline staff and municipal workers angry that the economic benefits of apartheid's demise have been slow to filter down.

Union leaders say there is rising ire at the growing gap between top management with their seven-figure salaries and workers earning around $4,700 a year.

"In terms of pay differentials,

Gold miners wait it out during their strike in Johannesburg, South Africa.

South Africa is one of the most unequal societies in the world," said Patrick Craven of the Congress of South African Trade Unions.

Unions argue the official jobless rate of about 27 percent underestimates the true extent of the problem because it does not take into account people who have given up looking for work.

A certain number of strikes is common at this time of year. But this year's action is the most widespread since the country's first all-race elections in 1994 ushered in a period of relative labor harmony.

Indian Official Quits as Sikhs Protest

NEW DELHI | An Indian minister implicated in the killings of thousands of Sikhs following the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1984 resigned Wednesday, hours after the current prime minister pledged to further investigate the attacks.

Jagdish Tytler, the minister in charge of nonresident Indian affairs, met with Sonia Gandhi, the Congress party president, and handed in his resignation.

Tytler's resignation was accepted by President A. P. J. Abdul Kalam on Indian Sikhs protested for a second day over the probe into the '84 killings.

Prime Minister Manmohan Singh's recommendation, Press Trust of India news agency reported.

Earlier, Singh, himself a Sikh, dismissed opposition demands to fire Tytler, who was implicated by a government commission that investigated the massacres. Singh's Congress Party was in power at the time of the riots.

Singh's statement — his first since the commission's report was released Monday — came as hundreds of Sikhs protested for a second straight day, demanding officials implicated by the report be prosecuted, a step the government has refused to take. ASHOK SHARMA (AP)

China Reveals Currency Basket

Dollar, euro, yen play role in how central bank sets yuan's value

SHANGHAI, CHINA | China disclosed for the first time Wednesday the composition of the basket of currencies used to set the yuan's value, saying it mainly includes the dollar, euro, Japanese yen and Korean won.

The currencies of Singapore,
Britain, Malaysia, Russia, Australia,
Canada and Thailand are also considered in setting the yuan's foreign exchange rate, Zhou Xiaochuan, the central bank governor, said during a speech to launch a new operations center for the People's Bank of China in Shanghai.

The news dispels at least some of the mystery surrounding the yuan's new exchange rate, although there was no information about the weightings of each currency.

When China cut its currency's peg to the dollar on July 21 and allowed it to move in a restricted float, it said the yuan's exchange rate would be determined by a collection of unspecified currencies.

At that time, the central bank

A shop assistant uses a machine to count Yuan bank notes in Shanghai.

said only that it had raised the yuan's value by about 2 percent to 8.11 yuan to the dollar from the previous rate of 8.27, and that the yuan would be allowed to move 0.3 percent in either direction each day.

China's central bank also said
Wednesday that it will tighten oversight of the country's foreign exchange markets while moving to liberalize its currency trading regime. ELAINE KURTENBACH (AP)

Metrorail Plan in Va. Tweaked

VIENNA, VA. | Design changes to a planned extension of the Metrorail system through Tysons Corner have cut costs by 25 percent to $1.8 billion, bringing the project in line with federal cost efficiency standards, officials said Wednesday.

The cost savings were achieved largely by shortening a tunnel underneath Tysons Corner and bringing the tracks and a station to the surface level, along with some other design changes.

The $1.8 billion cost estimate is significantly lower than a $2.4 billion projection made in June. Had it remained at $2.4 billion, there is little chance the proposal would have received funding. (AP)

Leaders Decry Base Plan

Members of Congress say realignment may backfire on region

WASHINGTON | Military medical facilities should not be moved to suburban Maryland, congressional leaders from Virginia and the District of Columbia testified Wednesday, arguing the location is too far from the Pentagon.

The Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission is considering a proposal to create a joint medical command headquarters in Bethesda by consolidating medical offices for the Navy and Air Force as well as the military's TRICARE health system.

Some of the offices to be consolidated are located in leased space in Fairfax County, Va., that do not meet military anti-terrorism standards.

"Approximately 70 percent of the personnel at these facilities live in Northern Virginia," said Rep. Jim Moran, D-Va. "It only takes them a few minutes to get to the Pentagon and up to two hours from Bethesda."

The commission is considering the consolidation plan, even though a Pentagon study already rejected the Bethesda site.

The commission is working to deliver a report to President Bush by Sept. 8.

Northern Virginia could lose 50,000 jobs by the end of the decade because of realignment plans.

Kickers Aim to Punt Troubles Away

Tupa, Hall eye pain-free seasons for Redskins

REDSKINS | The place kicker's tough year included an unbelievable four leg injuries, a veritable misery log for all the NFL to see.

The punter's tough year was much more private. His wife had breast cancer and he had his own health scare, yet his season on the field was very good.

John Hall and Tom Tupa both arrived at Washington Redskins training camp this year hoping the worst is behind them.

Tupa's ordeals were a well-kept secret last year. He experienced chest pains during the season—but he was examined and, in his words, "everything turned out fine."

Of greater concern was the health of his wife, Beth, who was diagnosed with breast cancer. Beth Tupa underwent chemotherapy treatments from September through the end of March.

"She's doing great," Tupa, 39, said.

Tupa's football performance showed no signs of distraction. He led the NFC in gross average (44.1 yards), placed 30 punts inside the 20.

Hall, meanwhile, has been itching to kick again after a season that included two strained hamstrings, a strained groin and a torn quad muscle. It all started when a helmet hit his knee when tried to make a tackle on a kickoff in the season opener. He overcompensated and hurt the other leg the following week. That meant he couldn't properly train in the weight room for two months. The other injuries followed.

"It was a domino effect," Hall said.

Hall managed to play in eight games before he was placed on injured reserve in December. He had missed only one game in his previous seven NFL seasons.

"It was hard to watch, never having had an injury problem, to go through a year like that," Hall said. "My appreciation for the game has changed." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Quaranta Chosen for U.S. Squad

Honor highlights the resurgence of United star beset by injuries

UNITED | D.C. United forward Santino Quaranta's resurgence after three injury-plagued seasons continued yesterday when he was named to the 20-man roster for the U.S.' World Cup qualifier against Trinidad on Aug. 17.

Quaranta earned his first senior national team appearances at last month's CONCACAF Gold Cup, but that was a side missing several regulars. Earning a spot on the U.S. squad that will take the field next week in Hartford is far more prestigious.

The youngest player in league history when he made his 2001 debut, the Baltimore native's career nearly dissolved after a string of injuries. Finally healthy this year, Quaranta, 20, has been a revelation for United, tallying two goals and three assists in 11 MLS games this year.

"Santino continues to be in great form and he is very deserving of the opportunity to represent the U.S. in the upcoming qualifier," United Technical Director Dave Kasper said. BRIAN STRAUS

O's Brace for Palmeiro's Return to the Clubhouse

ORIOLES | On the eve of Rafael Palmeiro's expected return from a 10-day suspension for steroid use, the Baltimore Orioles got a glimpse of how his presence will affect the clubhouse.

Orioles catcher Javy Lopez walked into the locker room Wednesday afternoon and was stunned to see a horde of reporters and cameramen surrounding reserve outfielder David Newhan.

"What's going on?" Lopez asked. "Palmeiro," a teammate replied.

There's no telling the impact Palmeiro's bat will have on the Baltimore lineup when he returns, but there's no question that things won't be the same.

Palmeiro was suspended on Aug. 1 for failing a drug test. Information on the case has been forwarded to Congress; for that reason, Palmeiro will not address his case, according to his agent, Arn Tellem.

Orioles interim manager Sam Perlozzo is considering withholding Palmeiro from the lineup Thursday, but that probably won't stop the fans at Camden Yards from voicing their opinion on the topic.

"I think it's going to be ugly," Newhan said. Newhan said he will welcome back Palmeiro, but also looks at the first baseman as proof that baseball's steroid testing is working. "He made his own bed and now he has to lie in it," he said. (AP)

Sports

Tiger Woods is looking to win three major championships in one year for the second time in his career once the PGA Championship begins on Thursday.

Woods Aims to Repeat History at Final Major

World's top golfer sets out to dominate field at PGA Championship

GOLF | Tiger Woods already has a green jacket and a claret jug. All he lacks going into the PGA Championship is that aura of invincibility that two majors no longer buy.

Woods can't make history at Baltusrol, only match it.

It was five years ago that he overwhelmed the PGA Tour by capturing the final three majors of the season, putting himself so far ahead of the rest of the pack that some knew they were playing for second before they had a chance to hit their first tee shot.

A playoff victory at the Masters in April, followed by a wire-to-wire victory last month at the British Open, again leaves Woods on the cusp of capturing three Grand Slam events in one year.

He has the players' attention. He never lost their respect.

But no one is conceding anything to him anymore.

"The atmosphere is nowhere near what it was in 2000 because I had won the U.S. Open by 15 shots and the British Open by eight," Woods said Tuesday. "On top of that, I've done this before. I guess from some of the guys I've talked to this week in the media, just the novelty factor is not there anymore. I've already done it. Hopefully, I can do it again."

Eagles Send Owens Home

Controversial receiver leaves camp after argument with coach

FOOTBALL | All-Pro wide receiver Terrell Owens left Eagles training camp Wednesday after a heated exchange with coach Andy Reid.

Reid asked the injured Owens to leave after their discussion, according to Owens' agent, Drew Rosenhaus, and his publicist, Kim Etheredge. She said Owens was asked to return next Wednesday and had gone to his home in New Jersey.

"I got sent home until Wednesday for whatever reason," Owens told Comcast SportsNet for a TV interview from his front lawn. "It was just a difference of opinion. I was defending myself."

Owens showed up at camp last week, but Wednesday was asked to leave.

Comcast SportsNet reported the disagreement occurred during a team meeting. Owens then got his belongings and cleared out of training camp at Lehigh University.

Owens did not say what the argument was about.

"If the truth needs to be told, then that's what I'll do," Owens said. "If he [Reid] wants me to be a man about it and have me really go on the air and really tell the people what happened, then I can. It was a difference of opinion."

Owens is unhappy the Eagles have refused to redo his contract as he enters the second season of a seven-year, $48.97 million deal. He hired Rosenhaus and threatened to skip camp completely. Instead, Owens reported, then injured his groin last Thursday. DAN GELSTON (AP)

Fanclub in Full Force

Scotland's legendary indie band hasn't given up on music

COMEBACKS | Since its first album in 1990, Teenage Fanclub has gone from Scotland's next great hope to artists seemingly consigned to the lives of journeymen, their sterling media notices no match for label troubles and a low profile.

Followers since the band's early days found a common denominator in Teenage Fanclub's heartbreaking three-part harmonies, ringing guitars and an attention to songcraft. So "Man-Made," Fanclub's seventh album, won't deliver any sonic surprises, even if how it was made represented a departure — it was recorded not in the U.K. but in the Chicago studio of post-rock pioneer John McEntire.

And indeed, the album sounds a lot like what the band has been doing since "Songs From Northern Britain," the luminous 1997 LP. That is, the band sounds open-hearted, in love with a pop hook, with an emotional range from wistful romanticism to mild disillusionment.

The new Fanclub album also arrives at a fortuitous time for Scottish rock.

Two of the founders of Glasgow's ragged, chimey post-punk scene — Orange Juice and Lloyd Cole and the Commotions — recently have reissued their seminal work, while young inheritors Franz Ferdinand and Belle and Sebastian are wrapping up new albums. Still younger groups, among them Sons and Daughters, are bubbling up.

"When I was a kid I listened to a lot of punk music, but then along came Orange Juice," said Norman Blake, one of the Fanclub's three singer-songwriters. "They really broadened my musical perspective. They were self-deprecating and had a great sense of humor. And they sounded like Velvet Underground meeting Al Green."

TFC's most famous record, 1991's "Bandwagonesque," had so many layers it positively shimmered. Coming out when heat around the "alternative" revolution was building, the album picked up enormous hype. Spin magazine chose the record as the best of the year.

Some see Fanclub's ensuing story — decreasing album sales, trouble with labels, most recently Sony — as disappointing.

But TFC has the future to look forward to. As Blake said, "We're pretty happy with the level of success we have now."

New Season Means More TV Politics

FALL TV | Soon we'll have two series set in the White House. The same September week NBC's "The West Wing" moves to Sunday at 8 p.m., ABC's "Commander in Chief" debuts Tuesday at 9 p.m. with Geena Davis as the country's first female president.

Davis

Creator Rod Lurie is an admirer of "West Wing," but said the drama was "rather arcane and it deals with very specific political issues."

Davis' portrait is more personal. She's an independent college president who remains largely a White House outsider until the president dies. She also has three children, so "Commander" focuses more on "what takes place in the East Wing and the residence."

Food

Once shunned, cream-filled pastries are rising to the top

Sure, cream puffs are chock-full of fat and calories and thin is in. But the treats that fell flat among diet-conscious Americans decades ago are making a comeback via Japan.

Dueling cream puff shops — one a Japanese standby, another a U.S. upstart — have popped up on the East Coast, and one plans to expand soon to other parts of the country.

At least one mail-order food company is also reporting a boom in cream puff sales and the Wisconsin State Fair — where they have been sold since 1924 and in recent years gained record popularity — now sells the confection at a rate of one per second.

The majority of the population doesn't watch their calorie intake, as can be seen with the country's high obesity rate, said Ron Paul, president of Technomic Inc., a Chicago-based food consulting and research company.

"I think they are a treat," Paul said. "There are enough consumers who are willing to treat themselves frequently or once in a while."

The cream puff became popular during the French food mania of the 1960s, said Lynne Olver, a culinary librarian and editor of foodtimeline.org. The fad was reinforced by celebrity chef Julia

Cream Puff Nation

Child, who broke down recipes for home cooks, and former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy, who served French food in the White House and made it fashionable, she said.

As the government issued warnings about fat and cholesterol in the 1980s, Olver said, Americans moved away from the confections — made with dough called pate a choux and most often filled with custard or whipped cream.

But health concerns seem to be the furthest things from the minds of the people standing in lines on the East Coast at Japan-based Beard Papa's and Choux Factory, which is New York-based but has Japanese owners.

Nearly 391,000 people tried cream puffs during the Wisconsin State Fair's 11-day run last year — 62 per minute — and this year, fair officials are offering $25 coolers with a six-pack of cream puffs, so people can take the desserts home in perfect condition.

Kathleen O'Leary, spokeswoman for the fair, said officials are considering whether to sell the cream puffs year-round. Their puffs, which are filled with heavy whipping cream, are 560 calories and 47 grams of fat, but that doesn't seem to stop fairgoers.

Kristine Kidd, food editor at Bon Appetit, said she is seeing cream puffs show up more on restaurant menus and in pastry shops, and bakers are doing new fillings or glazing them with chocolate.

The products are intended to be worn under makeup; like paint primer, they don't look like anything on their own. The eye formula (above, $15) didn't do much, but the skin version ($20) was excellent; it smoothed the face, reduced the amount of foundation needed and made everything blend better. ## DEAR MANOLO ►► THE SHOEBLOGGER ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS

I am taking a pole dancing class this fall and I need a pair of sexy but not slutty dance shoes. —Jennifer

At the first, the Manolo he imagined the traditional Mary Janes to be worn with the flouncy skirt and the crown of the May flowers. But then someone explained to the Manolo that the sort of the pole dancing intended did not involve the long colorful ribbons. After taking the moment to recover, the Manolo reconsidered and thought of the Lucia from the Freed of London ($104 at zappos.com). It has the practical-for-the-dancing Cuban heel, the t-strap to secure it to the high-kicking feet and the modest toe-cleavage to entice the red-blooded man. It is indeed sexy, but not in the least slutty.

Orioles

Raffy's Rap

Post staff writer JORGE ARANGURE JR. was online Tuesday to discuss what Rafael Palmeiro's steroid charges mean for the team | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

How can Raffy come back after all that's come out? Does he have any possible hope of clearing his name? I just don't see any way Palmeiro can reclaim his reputation. The steroid he used is a serious one and one that can't accidentally be ingested. Everybody seems to be anxious as to what Palmeiro will say this week when he returns, but I'm not sure he'll be more open than he was last week.

Isn't anybody in the Orioles' front office at least a little embarrassed that the 3,000-hit charade was held when they knew there was a positive lurking in the background? From all indications it appears the Orioles did not know about the positive test until last week. If they did know, I hardly think they would have scheduled the poster [at Camden Yards] and the celebration. Bud Selig certainly knew about it prior to the Hall of Fame weekend and held off from announcing it until last week ... Baseball controls the information about this, so they leave themselves open to a lot of scrutiny.

Can the O's release Palmeiro and pay off what's left on his contract? The Orioles can absolutely release Palmeiro and pay the rest of his salary for this year. It seems like a small price to pay for all the negative publicity the team will receive when he returns. But I just don't know if the Orioles will do that. They would rather Palmeiro just retire.

What's your opinion on Raffy getting into the Hall of Fame? He is my all-time favorite player and I'm heartbroken!

I would be heartbroken, too, if he was my all-time favorite player. We won't know what will become of Palmeiro's H.O.F. chances until all the information on the positive test comes out. A lot of people have already said they won't vote for him but that could change if anything positive comes out in the next month or so.

Letters

Patriotism at the Pump

I WISH YOU HAD a better headline for "Good News for Gas Guzzlers" (Aug. 10) about more hybrids, like "Good News for Gas Patriots," meaning those who are doing their patriotic duty to reduce our dependence on Middle East oil. We should support our soldiers overseas by doing our fair share and buying more hybrid electric cars.

Now, if only Toyota or Ford or GM would come out with a plug-in hybrid, with better batteries that would allow me to go 20-50 miles on all-electric mode. College engineering students have made these cars, and the electric fuel costs the equivalent of about 50 cents per gallon. I like that!

—CHARLIE GARLOW
Silver Spring, Md.

Bathroom on Rails

IT'S NOT SO MUCH the application of makeup on Metro that causes the kind of remarks in "Wake Up to Makeup" (Letters, Aug. 8) as it is the attitudes of the "Me" generation that exist today. The "whatever-I-have-to-do, doesn't-matter-what-anyone-thinks" mentality is hard to understand. As I sit in my Metro seat while clipped fingernails fly by my head, maybe someone should ask Metro if we are paying for transportation or renting bathroom space. Can't we all just be polite?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Focus squarely on the task at hand and try not to distract yourself with minor opportunities that look deceptively attractive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) People in your life may be less than honest with you. It will be up to you to insist on being treated fairly — now, before it's too late.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to concentrate on just one project. Doing too many things at once may keep you from being truly successful at any of them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't get carried away with those new plans you've been working on. There may be less to do in preparation than you think. A Scorpio native offers something unusual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Self-acceptance is the key to a profitable day and a promising start to a new personal phase. Now is not the time to be overtly self-critical or insecure.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) What was lost will be found before the day is out. Focus on moving about as efficiently as possible; consolidate your efforts.

LITIGATION

Snoop Rape Suit Dropped Mysteriously and Suddenly

A makeup artist dropped a lawsuit alleging she was drugged and raped by rapper SNOOP DOGG and several of his associates after a taping of "Jimmy Kimmel Live" two years ago.

The woman's attorney filed a request last Wednesday to dismiss the suit with prejudice, meaning it cannot be refiled. No criminal charges were ever brought. Snoop Dog paid "absolutely no money in the settlement," his publicist said Tuesday. (AP)

Reese Takes Law Into Own Hands, Buys BB Gun

Paparazzi who chased REESE WITHERSPOON from her gym to her home won't face criminal charges, prosecutors say. Although they undoubtedly terrified the actress when they "besieged" her in April, there wasn't evidence of false imprisonment or other crimes, said the head of the Los Angeles district attorney office's Target Crimes Unit on Tuesday. No criminal behavior could be proved. (AP)

RUMORS

NYU Loses Olsen Twin

MARY-KATE OLSEN is not returning to New York University for her sophomore year this fall, planning instead to study at a California art school, US Weekly reported. The twins' rep, Michael Pagnotta, denied it: "Mary-Kate is not transferring from NYU," he told E! News. "She will be doing approved independent study for credit through the Gallatin School [at NYU] in the fall. She will continue to be enrolled there."

Judge Deems K.L. Too Sexy for Jail

KIMORA LEE SIMMONS has agreed to serve six months of probation for allegedly driving erratically and ignoring a police car in July 2004. Simmons had also faced drug possession charges after officers found a small amount of pot in her car. Bergen County, N.J., prosecutors agreed to allow her into the county's pretrial intervention program for nonviolent first offenders. (AP)

Oh Courtney, You Were Doing So Well

A Los Angeles judge ordered COURTNEY LOVE to appear in court Aug. 19 and answer to accusations that she took drugs while on probation, Reuters reported. She will face arrest if she does not appear. Prosecutors say Love used a controlled substance last month — "some sort of narcotic." Also last month, Love was taken to a Los Angeles hospital after collapsing at a party for unknown reasons. (AP)

Celebrity Building Materials Have a Future in Midwest

A little bit of Eight Mile Road history signed by rapper EMINEM is on its way to Nebraska. Someone from the Cornhusker State paid $685 for the last of 30 commemorative bricks from the recently demolished Detroit Artillery Armory on Eight Mile in Oak Park, Mich. That's the most for any of the bricks during the nearly three-month auction on eBay. They were sold as a fund-raiser for Eminem's charity, the Marshall Mathers Foundation. (AP)

NAME: Kelly Gordon
GIG: Curator of "Directions — Janet Cardiff" at the Hirshhorn

FOR "WORDS DRAWN IN WATER," Canadian sound artist Janet Cardiff has constructed a half-hour audio tour of several sites along the National Mall. Visitors check out specially configured iPod shuffles from a desk in the Hirshhorn's lobby (bring a photo ID for collateral) and, one by one, follow in the artist's footsteps. We don't want to drop any spoilers about the nearby locales she gets you to see anew, but the three-dimensional effect of the binaurally recorded narration and sound collage is eerily intimate. Part of the Hirshhorn's permanent collection, the newly commissioned piece is up through Oct. 30, after which time it'll occasionally reappear. Hirshhorn curator Kelly Gordon explains.

Even if you've been to the Hirshhorn or to the Mall hundreds of times, the piece changes the site for you. It's as though Cardiff is putting aural blinders on you and focusing you in different ways. It's a disembodying experience, because you lose awareness of yourself. You're floating in this abstraction. And indeed, a lot of people report they feel suspended in her work.

The piece seems to relate to video games. There's that aspect of being in a space and trying to figure out which parts of it are going to be active, what the rules are, what you're going to be narrated toward. I felt as if I was playing "Grand Theft Auto" or "Splinter Cell" but in a real space, before you figure out what the mission is.

Yes, she's also done a piece that involves audio-visual elements, and you carry around a small camera and you see on the screen what you're looking at. It's in a theater in Berlin. The camera pans to a corner and there's a rag in the corner because on your screen there's a rag in the corner. It's reality — it's what you're seeing — but then you feel like you're filming it, only you're not.

There are certain parts of the real- world interaction that are predictable. The voice says, "People are sitting on a bench," and people are sitting on a bench. But then there are other parts that aren't necessarily. Someone'll come up and talk to you, or I found a dollar. Still, it starts making you feel like everything is manipulated.

The video game for me is an old-fashioned treasure hunt. And then you realize that part of the treasure is how it operates on your imagination.

"It's a disembodying experience, because you lose awareness of yourself."

But Cardiff's piece hijacks your imagination.

It does. The ordinary becomes extraordinary. Hearing someone else's thoughts as if they're coming from your own mind, you very quickly forget the equipment and give yourself over to this. It's amazing. GLENN DIXON

→ Hirshhorn, 7th Street and Independence Avenue SW; "Words Drawn in Water" will be up through Oct. 30, Wed.-Sun., 11 a.m.-3 p.m.; 202-633-1000. (L'Enfant Plaza)

A Stage Full of Miracles

Olney debuts a grand new theater with a grand old play

STAGE | William Gibson's "The Miracle Worker" tends to keep its actors coming back for more.

The play debuted on Broadway in 1959, starring Anne Bancroft as Anne Sullivan and Patty Duke as her famous pupil, Helen Keller. Both actresses reprised their roles in the 1962 film version, and Duke played Sullivan in the 1979 made-for-TV version (naturally).

Olney Theatre is continuing the trend, staging "The Miracle Worker" 13 years after it played on the theater's main stage. Director Jim Petosa returns with the two stars of the 1992 version, Carolyn Pasquantonio as Keller and

THE QUEST FOR 'WATER': Carolyn Pasquantonio and Marybeth Wise star in the tough but uplifting classic American tale of hardship and hard-won friendship.

Marybeth Wise as Sullivan.

Not everything's the same this time: "The Miracle Worker" will be the first production staged at Olney's new theater. It's a fine play with which to debut the new stage, since the all-black set will attempt to mimic the experience of a person who cannot sense the world.

The play centers around the foundation of the lifelong bond formed between the two women in the two weeks Keller's parents gave Sullivan to communicate with their daughter.

The story may be a familiar one, but it's still, well, miraculous when the titular character gets through to her student. ERIN TROMPETER

ARE WE NOT MEN? That's hard to say, from any angle. The five guys in Devo protested the industrialization of the human soul by turning themselves into robotic clones.

Men with Hats

25 years later, Devo's new-wave dystopianism still electrifies

MUSIC | We've gotten used to leaders of off-the-wall '80s new-wave bands going on to productive Hollywood careers. Danny Elfman left behind Oingo Boingo to score everything from "The Simpsons" to "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory."

And Devo mastermind Mark Mothersbaugh has worked on projects ranging from "Pee-wee's Playhouse" to "The Life Aquatic With Steve Zissou."

But when it comes to cultural iconhood, Elfman will be remembered for the theme to one of the longest-running shows on TV, while Mothersbaugh will first and foremost be Mr. Devo.

A high-concept Akron outfit that dared to suggest that humanity was actually regressing — "devolving," if you will — Devo incarnated both the headiness of a new technological age and the fear that the coming machine-world may be sowing the seeds of our undoing.

Tearing a page from Kraftwerk's book, Devo clued in to the fact that being a cog in some futuristic totalitarian machine was not conducive to playing in a really tight band. If the uniforms looked crisp and the hair was picture-perfect, surely the authorities wouldn't complain. Dressed like plastic-coiffed cosmonauts or leather-clad art drones with shiny red ziggurats for hats, Devo unleashed some radical deconstructions of rock.

Brian Eno put his producer's stamp on the 1978 debut LP, "Q: Are We Not Men? A: We Are Devo!" and the antennae of brainy musos bristled with the news. When the quintet refashioned the Rolling Stones' consumer-society plaint "(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction" into a fractured, funky robotic tease, a new cultural paradigm was launched.

In 1980, "Freedom of Choice" yielded the deviant hit "Whip It," an oft-anthologized track that has come to emblemize the decade's alien guitar 'n' synth sound. Although it was difficult to determine exactly what the song was about, its call to "Whip it good!" was immediately adopted as a rallying cry by S/M devotees, overzealous masturbators and soda jerks who liked nothing better than to huff the propellant out of cans of whipped cream after a rough shift at Friendly's.

When Devo re-forms for two 9:30 Club gigs, Saturday and Sunday, many fans will be expecting versions of the deep catalog cuts they're rediscovering on Collectables Records' recent reissues of the other four albums in the band's core discography.

We're hoping for "Beautiful World," a Reagan-era nuclear-terror protest song (at least it was videoed as such) in faux-complacent garb. Just because we are all Devo, we don't have to go down without a fight. GLENN DIXON

Deconstruction

WHAT: Exploring Ballet

WHERE: Kennedy Center, Millennium Stage, 2700 F St. NW.

WHEN: Thu., 6 p.m.

HOW MUCH: free; 202-467-6700.

WHY: If you've ever wondered what that thing is called when dancers squoogle their legs in the air, or what it means when they do that, Suzanne Farrell is here to help. In "Exploring Ballet," students from Suzanne Farrell Ballet perform a piece by Farrell, then the work is broken down, its notable elements and their meanings teased out. Attendees will be so elevated by the knowledge and the transcendent experience that they'll be doing the leg-squoogle right out the Kennedy Center doors. But don't, OK?

Native American dancers, drummers face off at MCI Center

OUT & ABOUT | Exactly how do you say, "You got served" in Arapaho?

Somebody at the National Powwow is bound to know. From Friday morning to Sunday night, the MCI Center will reverberate with the sounds of Native American drumming and dancing, as members of hundreds of tribal nations vie for purses totaling more than $100,000.

Organized by the National Museum of the American Indian, the Powwow is part performance competition, part cultural fair, part religious ceremony.

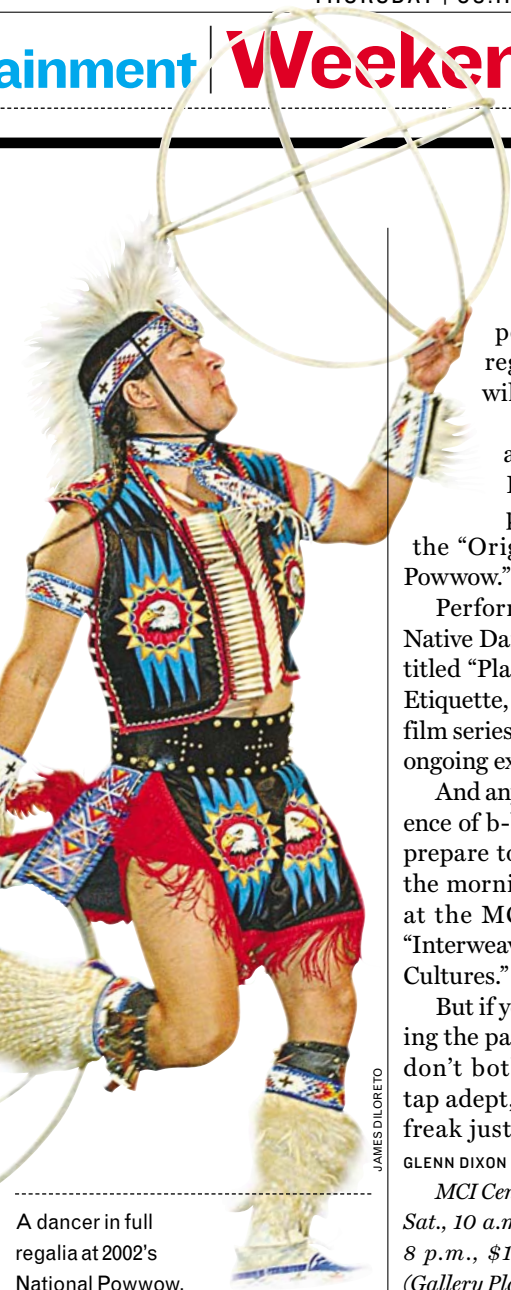

Dance categories range from Golden Age Men's Southern Straight and Adult Women's Fancy Shawl to Teen Female Jingle and Juniors

MOVE TO THE BEAT

→ Don't miss the daily Grand Entry (Fri. & Sat, noon & 6 p.m.; Sun., 1 p.m.), featuring hundreds of dancers in traditional regalia.

→ Traditionally, a "powwow" is for dancers and drummers, Native-Americans and non-natives, who gather to keep cultural rituals alive, incorporate modern twists and to pass them on to a new generation.

Boy's Grass. Drum awards include Northern Original, Northern Contemporary and Southern Original styles. In other words, a dizzying array of precisely codified cultural expertise will be on view. Around the arena, artists, crafts-persons and masters of regional Native cooking will vend their wares.

A few blocks south at the NMAI, Powwow Head Staff conduct a panel discussion on the "Origins and Evolution of Powwow."

Performances by the Kanata Native Dance Theatre, a program titled "Plains-style Tipi: History, Etiquette, and Uses" and a special film series augment the museum's ongoing exhibits.

And anyone not hip to the presence of b-boys on the Rez should prepare to get schooled. Among the morning exhibition sessions at the MCI are some covering "Interweaving Native & Hip-Hop Cultures."

But if you're thinking of crashing the party "South Park"-style, don't bother. A pole dancer, a tap adept, a goth kid and a DDR freak just won't cut it this time.

N.O.: The Big Creepy

Kate Hudson can take whatever New Orleans dishes out

HAUNTED HOUSES | Kate Hudson feels right at home in the Big Easy.

Though now a mom to 18-month-old Ryder, the actress still finds time to go out on the town with her hubby, former Black Crowes frontman Chris Robinson. She also has the stamina to stay up until the wee hours, then sail through a day of interviews.

"I've got a lot of energy," she explained, flashing a smile reminiscent of her mother's — Oscar-winner Goldie Hawn.

Like Hawn, Hudson has demonstrated a flair for comedy. But she would be bored with doing the same type of film over and over, she said. That, in part, is what drew her to "The Skeleton Key," a thriller from British filmmaker Iain Softley with a script by "The Ring" screenwriter Ehren Kruger.

"It was such a fun, fun read," she said. "There's some really heavy themes in this movie: growing old and wanting to live your life over again."

In "The Skeleton Key," she plays a hospice nurse who goes to work for an elderly stroke victim (played almost wordlessly by John Hurt) living in a rundown gothic home hidden away in the swamps outside the city.

Given a skeleton key that opens every door in the musty old house, Caroline soon discovers a blocked off passage in the attic. Naturally, she decides to explore what's on the other side and uncovers the secrets to a dark past. Essentially a ghost story, "The Skeleton Key" delves into the mysteries of the folk magic practice of "hoodoo."

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS: In "Skeleton Key," Kate Hudson plays a nurse who cares for a patient in a house overrun with bad vibes, dark magic and mysterious doors.

Hudson was unfamiliar with hoodoo (involving spells for both good and ill) when she read the script, but as someone with an open mind, she was curious about it. "I look at it as fun," she said. "I love tarot cards ... I'm always going to psychics and I'm interested in what they have to say."

Filming on location in the Louisiana backwoods for two months at an old plantation house owned by a couple in their 90s enhanced the spooky feel of the movie.

"I was pumping and breast-feeding at that time, so a lot of times on set I'd have to go into some weird room by myself and it was just creepy," she said. "It was, like, totally haunted. Totally haunted."

ANGELA DAWSON (VNU ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

GOOD OL' BOY BASICS: The makers of "Dukes of Hazzard" don't dream too large.

Take 10

THE WASHINGTON POST'S FILM CRITICS TACKLE THIS WEEK'S BOX-OFFICE TOP 10

1 The Dukes of Hazard

More charmingly lowbrow than screamingly funny, it doesn't seem interested in straying from the formula of screeching cars and barroom brawls. DESSON THOMSON

2 The Wedding Crashers

This film earns a pure, hard R for Raunch and aRested development, to say nothing of Ruthlessness and

iResponsibility. STEPHEN HUNTER

3 Charlie and the Chocolate Factory

It's a masterful parade of inventiveness and will entertain the kids, for sure. But it still feels slightly frosty to the touch. DESSON THOMSON

4 Sky High

With one foot in the world of comic-book fantasy and the other in the grim realities of high school, it works for the whole family. ANN HORNADAY

5 Must Love Dogs

Diane Lane and John Cusack turn what could have been a by-the-numbers chick flick into an improbably smart and genial little mental get-away. What's more, they generate real, slow-burning rapport. ANN HORNADAY

6 March of the Penguins

Following a clan of charismatic and stylish emperor penguins on a perilous journey, the filmmaker has made an absorbing, visually spectacular film. ANN HORNADAY

7 Stealth

Somevapid peoplestand around trying to look interested, while a lot of unlikely computer-animated aircraft violate the laws of gravity onscreen.

STEPHEN HUNTER

8 Fantastic Four

Despite some nice moments of computer-generated imagery, the whole superhero shebang lacks oomph and identity. DESSON THOMSON

9 War of the Worlds

Despite occasional flaws, this brilliantly told tale seizes you, holds you spellbound and expels you, breathless and spent. STEPHEN HUNTER

10 The Island

In all the rain, running around, blurry chase scenes, endless vehicular pileups and close-ups of Scarlett Johansson's lips and Ewan McGregor's mole, there's only the dimmest plot. ANN HORNADAY

Letters Perfect Jazz

Tenor saxophonist Buck Hill may be D.C.'s best-kept secret

MUSIC | Being a local hero certainly has its perks. But it has its disadvantages too. Just ask veteran tenor saxophonist Buck Hill.

For years, he's been a prominent fixture on Washington's under-sung jazz scene, leading his own ensembles or lending his gruff tone to bands, led by Count Basie, Charlie Byrd, Dizzy Gillespie and Shirley Horn. Unfortunately, his soulful wails and commanding improvisations don't get much shine outside the Beltway. And some club owners equate local talent with sub-par, often opting for more higher-price ticketed musicians with more international fame.

As his upcoming Twin's Lounge performance will surely prove though, Hill is no charlatan. Sure, he kept his day job as a U.S. postal service mail-deliverer, which earned him the somewhat annoying reputation as the "mail-carrying jazz man," but when he powers his blustery tone over a lovely ballad or navigates through some tricky bebop phrase, his musical prowess becomes evident.

With a string of enticing albums

The "mail-carrying jazz man" has plenty of masterful albums to his name.

for the Steeplechase and Muse labels, Hill's conversational solos place him in the company of David "Fathead" Newman, Lou Donaldson and Johnny Griffin — saxophone giants who gracefully balance the worlds of jazz and blues.

And while Hill's name has yet to attain the wider recognition it merits, don't sleep on the eminent jazz musician. Yes, he's a local hero. But his undisputed musicianship deserves your undivided attention and support. JOHN MURPH

Threads of History

The Knitter's sterling country-folk rose from punk's ashes

MUSIC | Twenty years ago, you couldn't just slap an "alt" in front of country music to make it cool. Ryan Adams was still a third-level magic user. Country was for red-necks and urban goat-ropers. All of which made it more remarkable when L.A.'s reigning punk band, X, unleashed countrified strum and twang under the name the Knitters.

The name was a nod to 1950s folk unit, the Weavers (featuring Pete Seeger), whose million-selling career was blacklisted out of existence for the members' radical politics.

Likewise, some X fans were horrified by the Knitters. L.A. punks weren't supposed to exhume numbers by the Carter Family, Merle Haggard and Leadbelly, nor to rework beloved X originals, as on the 1985 album "Poor Little Critter on the Road." But their country-punk inspiration cut the template for the countless alt bands that came after.

Now they're back (and in D.C. on Thursday) to show the young'uns how it's done. "The Modern Sounds of the Knitters" features the trademark astringent harmonies of John Doe and Exene Cervenka, D.J. Bonebrake's drums and Blasters founder Dave Alvin (again sitting in for original X guitarist Billy Zoom),

POST-ADDAMS FAMILY PORTRAIT: The seminal Los Angeles band X transmogrified into the roots-conscious Knitters, but the new incarnation has its own edge.

plus bassist Jonny Ray Bartel. This time the Stanley Brothers, Porter Wagoner and Steppenwolf get the treatment, as do X classics such as "Burning House of Love" and "In This House That I Call Home."

It's amazing to think that in 2025, when Ryan Adams releases his, like, 80th album, the Knitters should be getting around to their third. And their old songs will still be way ahead of their time.

Sweet Hearts' Dance

Holly Golightly and Tom Heint see the world with new eyes

MUSIC | Golly gee damn, it's Holly Golightly! But not that Holly Golightly. This one is the British chanteuse with a thing for smoky, late-night bourbon-soaked Americana. She bears a certain physical resemblance to Audrey Hepburn, if you squint. But her perfect world is no Tiffany's. Rather, it's a '57 Chevy on an open highway with a half pack of Lucky's and no particular place to go. Though she will drift on into D.C. this Sunday.

"Slowly but Surely" is the latest of her 13 albums to appear over the past decade. The slow, reverberated guitar, double bass and lone-some lyrics evoke a long-lost, deep-blue America. It's no wonder the White Stripes had her appear on their album "Elephant." Sometimes it takes an outsider to see one's home for what it should be.

Golightly is joined by another historical revisionist, Tom Heint. The Oregon native strums hilarious tales like Roger Miller on a Mardi Gras bender. Somehow he manages to combine early rock 'n' roll, country and blues with odd avant flourishes stolen from "Sgt. Pepper."

ALISON WUNDERLAND

The British chanteuse is more at home on the American highway than in a pub.

But it's his silly, trashy sense of humor that sets him apart from other roots revivalists. His ode to the worst automobile ever manufactured, the Ford Pinto Squire, almost makes one a bit wistful for the nadir of Detroit engineering. A paean to the International House of Pancakes was long overdue. But "I Love" drops the immortal line, "I love golfing indoors, shag carpet floors, young Haley Mills, and pills. And I love you too." What a sweetheart. BOB MASSEY

WAR BABIES: After appearing in a documentary in Africa, Sum 41 began to write songs with a more global worldview.

The Sum 41 Of All Beers

Canada's skate-rock stars get serious, but they won't grow up

MUSIC | Sure, the members of Sum 41 were just toddlers when Motley Crue's "Shout at the Devil" came out.

But now that the two bands are touring together, they're finding they have a lot in common. Along with their high-profile love affairs — with the likes of Pamela Anderson and Avril Lavigne — they also share an unquenchable thirst for alcohol.

"It's been lots of fun," Sum 41 drummer Steve Jocz reported. "We get to watch Tommy Lee every day from right beside the drums. All he does is shot after shot while he plays, so we have to do them, too. You have to pace yourself or you're wasted by 10 p.m."

The current Motley Crue tour hits Nissan Pavilion on Saturday. Opening act Sum 41 is enjoying the success of its third hit album, "Chuck," which features the metallic lead single "We're All to Blame."

"The album is heavy but there are also some slow songs on it, so 'We're All to Blame' is a good representation of the whole thing," Jocz said.

"It was written after we got back from Africa, where we were doing a documentary with War Child Canada. The song is about what happened there, how everything would become intense and then die down."

The serious tone of that track has been offered as evidence of Sum 41's newfound maturity. Jocz agrees with that theory — to a point. "It's easier for us to just do what we want to do, rather than what people expect us to do. I think that comes with maturity."

"But the more successful you get, the more opportunities you have to act like an idiot. So in that sense, I think we're becoming more immature." SEAN RICHARDSON

TROPICAL STORM: The Nuyorican collective combines a world of music on its funky, danceable, warm-weather albums.

Summertime in the City

Yerba Buena is an island breeze on a hot day

MUSIC | Hot summer block parties were created for bands like Yerba Buena. The Nuyorican band boasts a sound so infectious that it instantly incites a massive, sweaty dance-fest.

By taking snatches of modern jazz, funk, hip-hop, house and Afro-beat, then infusing it with New York-centric salsa, Yerba Buena has propelled barrio-funk into the 21st century.

The title of its recently released sophomore disc, "Island Life" says it all, alluding to the bristling multiculturalism of Manhattan, sounding like it couldn't be recorded in any other city.

Spearheaded by famed producer and multi-instrumentalist Andres Levin and fronted by the divine songstresses Cucu Diamantes and Xiomara Laugart, Yerba Buena turns a slight corner for the absurd on "Island Life." The band recruits John Leguizamo on a couple of tracks, and there are noteworthy appearances from Les Nubians, Celia Cruz, Joe Bataan and M1 of the hip-hop group Dead Prez.

With the District's cosmopolitan flair as backdrop, Yerba will heat up the Black Cat this Saturday, possibly spilling out to a steamy late-night block party. JOHN MURPH

SPECIALS

Musical Inspired Drink May Go Well With 'Hairspray'

In honor of Charm City's favorite musical, "Hairspray," the KENNEDY CENTER has been offering the Baltimore Beehive, a cocktail that adapts the classic Hurricane. With two kinds of rum plus a lot of other mixers, there could be some Tracy Turnblad-esque dancing in the Grand Foyer during intermission, when the $10 cocktail is served. But the drink's run at the Kennedy Center will end when the musical does, on Aug. 21.

SPECIALS

Le Paradou Offers Menu For Pre-Theater Dining

Speaking of the stage, LE PARADOU, located around the corner from the Shakespeare Theatre in Penn Quarter, is offering a pre-theater prix-fixe dinner menu through Aug. 20. Served from 5:30 to 7 p.m., the dinner is $45 per person excluding tax and tip. First course options include a fava bean risotto, yellow tomatoes and roasted prawns and a lobster purse with ginger-accented carrot jus. The second course features mushroom-stuffed quail with artichokes and sage jus, and a Mediterranean rock fish stuffed with shrimp mousse, roast sea scallops and turnips. Dessert selections include a frozen passion fruit soufflé and a fig tart.

RENEWALS

Charlie Palmer Closed For Private Dining Remodel

CHARLIE PALMER STEAK, at the foot of Capitol Hill, is taking advantage of the congressional recess to revamp part of its interior space, as many restaurants that cater to the capital's power brokers do. The restaurant is remodeling its side dining area into private dining and will remain closed through Aug. 24.

101 Constitution Ave. NW; 202-547-8100. (Union Station)

DEBUT

Bistro Tabaq Unveils Itself, And Its Retractable Roof

The 1300 block of U Street NW has certainly been busy these past few weeks restaurant-wise. AL CROSTINO, which has already been getting favorable initial reviews since opening at the beginning of the month, has a new neighbor, BISTRO TABAQ. Aiming to recast the Mediterranean tapas trend, Tabaq takes it up a notch with its location. The unassuming blue rowhouse is slightly deceiving from the outside — its retractable glass-roofed dining area offers a panoramic view of the city. (Move over, HOTEL WASHINGTON.) Bistro Tabaq is partially open, with additional VIP and club rooms being added in the coming weeks and months.

Going Buggy With Young Explorers

➔ KIDS AND BUGS go together like peanut butter and jelly. With ants. So what better way to get your little insect-inspectors out on a Saturday than to take them on the Potomac Conservancy's Children's Bug Walk. A bonus for kids: They get to eat anything they find. Oh, just kidding, Dad; sheesh. WHAT DO YOU WANNA DO TONIGHT? BY FRITZ HAHN, RHOME ANDERSON AND DAVID MALITZ

WHAT THE DOCTOR ORDERED: Medications is something of a Dischord Records supergroup, and worth seeing play live.

THURSDAY

None of us has seen the "Dukes of Hazzard" remake yet — or plans to, to be honest — but we'll occupy ourselves with those cool new DVDs of the original series. The Dukes of Hazzard Party tonight at MISTER DAYS isn't discriminating. There's $500 at stake in a "Daisy Dukes" short-shorts contest, and the costume contest welcomes J.D. Hoggesses who are tall and mustachioed or squat and dressed in white. Doors open at 5 p.m. for happy hour with a free buffet.

Local trio Medications, appearing tonight at WAREHOUSE NEXT DOOR, plays uncompromising, jagged and often seriously intense rock 'n' roll, the type Dischord Records has long specialized in. A Dischord supergroup of sorts, featuring former members of Faraquet and Smart Went Crazy, the band finds the ideal middle ground between the former's all-out sonic frenzy and the latter's more refined approach.

PHISH TEA CAFE has been looking interesting for a minute — not just because it's in the vanguard of the H Street entertainment revitalization, but also because the Caribbean restaurant's visual art and poetry events could make it a cultural hub, too. Tonight Phish Tea showcases vocalist Lysette Titi, also known as Sis from the Backyard Band.

FRIDAY

Local jazz legend Keter Betts was scheduled to play at the

The late Keter Betts played with the greats — and was one himself.

WESTMINSTER PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH's weekly concert tonight. Sadly, Betts, who spent years playing bass with Ella Fitzgerald, Stan Getz and Charlie Byrd, passed away Saturday. He was 77. To honor Betts' memory, tonight's gig is being turned into a tribute, featuring saxophonist Buck Hill, bassist Michael Bowie, pianist Robert Redd and drummer Harold Mann. Jazz lasts from 6 to 9 p.m., and there's a $5 cover. Skip your dinner plans and get something to eat at the church — a wonderful dinner served in the basement includes fried fish, chicken, veggies and dessert, and is available from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Gordon Chambers made a quick stop in Washington earlier this year and probably noticed what many other progressive soul artists have come to enjoy here: smart, appreciative audiences who love honest music. He's joined at MIRRORS by an intriguing complement of two other artists: local superstar K'Alyn and Atlanta transplant Jahi Kearsse.

Back when Fritz was just getting into Lindy Hop, he went to see the J Street Jumpers — a lot. The band's dynamic '40s-style jump blues and '50s Chicago R&B is perfect for dancing. The Jumpers appear tonight at the SMITHSONIAN JAZZ CAFE at the Museum of Natural History. Music goes from 6 to 10 p.m.

SATURDAY

The idea of a Brazilian-themed party at DREAM sounds great, but promoters had us with two little words: "Free caipirinhas." While you're sipping, DJ Fabiosoul spins Brazilian music all night on the third floor. Get free admission from www.dcdream.com.

"Black Rock" feels like an annoying oxymoronic way to categorize certain bands, but it can be useful. Rahmana, Sakrid and Sitali share a bill tonight at DC9 to show that aggressive playing, loud guitars and funk still coexist on the local scene.
